NRA Range Conducting Officer Courses

Dear Members,

We rely on qualified Range Conducting Officers to run the ranges for the SRA Championship events and we need enough RCOs to share the duties and to allow everyone to shoot. Some RCOs have retired in recent years and we need to get more members to qualify as RCOs. There are regular RCO courses run in Scotland by Allan Mabon and Mark Joyce but in recent years relatively few SRA members have taken the course and we need to get more members trained. Scottish Target Shooting has some funding available to help cover the cost of some training courses in Scotland including RCO courses. Anyone interested in gaining the RCO qualification please contact me by e-mail at tlk762@aol.com so that we can look at organising courses during this year. The NRA registration fee for the course is £68 for NRA members and £76 for non-members, which will be covered by Scottish Target Shooting for STS members and any range fees will also be covered. The RCO course now includes the High Muzzle Energy RCO qualification, which used to be run as a separate course. If you have any questions about the course or what's involved, please contact me.
